INTRODUCTION

Your Transition to Adulthood

Moving into adulthood is both exciting and challenging for many youth. As you explore new opportunities, places and relationships you will be in transition, meaning you will experience changes in your life and be adjusting to being an adult. You and your family will need to make many decisions about your future, including choices about where you are going to live, what kind of job you will have and what you will do with your free time.

Decisions about your future can be tough to make but planning ahead will help. The transition planning process can begin when you are as young as 14 years of age. Starting early allows time to create a Transition Plan that will help you face the challenges of becoming an adult and make your dreams come true.

Your Future Now was designed as a companion to Transition Planning for Youth with Special Needs: A Community Support Guide (MCFD, 2005), which provides community partners, such as school personnel, social workers, and community members, with useful information and practical tips for supporting successful transition planning for youth with special needs. A youth with special needs is defined as a person who needs extra support to fully participate at home, in school, or in the community.

YOUR TRANSITION

What is Transition Planning?

Transition planning involves looking ahead and planning for your future. While you are still in school you can prepare for the opportunities and experiences of being an adult.

Transition planning involves you, your family, your local service providers, school personnel and government staff who support youth transitioning to adulthood.

When you build your plan, you will list your goals and dreams. Then you will decide how you will reach them. Developing a Transition Plan can be fun and exciting but it also requires many meetings with your team. Your partnership with your team will help you get ready for the challenges and privileges of being an adult and make your transition a success.

Why is Transition Planning Important?

Transition planning can help you find a job, find a place to live, get involved in your community, and possibly continue your education. Transition planning gives you a chance to review your accomplishments and create a vision for your future. As you prepare to leave high school, your Transition Plan will guide you and help you be successful in your life as an adult.

Why Should I be Involved in Transition Planning?

You know yourself better than anyone else – including your friends and family members. If you are at the centre of the transition planning process, you can make sure your Transition Plan reflects who you are and what you want to achieve in your life.

This approach is called person-centered planning because it places you in a respected leadership position. Person-centered planning encourages you and your family to actively participate in planning for your future. Your involvement in building your Transition Plan will make your plan a success and may also help you learn valuable skills, such as how to advocate for yourself and direct your life.

In British Columbia, the school system supports youth involvement in future life planning. School graduation requirements include the successful completion of the Grade 10 Planning course and a Graduation Portfolio. These requirements help students plan for their future education and careers. They also introduce financial planning skills and decision-making skills for making informed choices on issues such as health.

In addition, Individualized Education Plans (IEPs) are required for all students identified as having a special need. In many cases your IEP may be used as your Transition Plan. This means you can use your IEP and your Graduation Portfolio to assist in planning for your transition to adult life.

A Transition Planning Workbook with sample Transition Plans and a Transition Plan template are included in the back of this guide (pages 20-46) to help you shape your goals and develop your own unique plan. You can use the planning workbook to assist you and your family in preparing for your transition to adult life.

The Resource Guide, starting on page 47 of this booklet, will give you more information on housing, funding supports and recreation.

The next step is to start putting your Transition Plan together!

SIX STEPS TO A SUCCESSFUL TRANSITION PLAN

GETTING STARTED

Here are six steps to help you develop a successful Transition Plan. This plan will guide your transition to adult life.

Your plan will be unique to you. Actively participating in the discussions and decisions will make sure that it reflects who you are and what you want for your future. This also means you are responsible for completing the steps and achieving the goals you've set in your Transition Plan.

1 STEP 1: Build Your Transition Planning Team

Building your transition planning team is the first step in achieving your future dreams. People who can support you in setting your goals and planning for your future may include your parent(s) or guardian(s), other members of your family, teachers, school support staff, social workers and your friends. Sharing your goals, hopes, and needs with these people is essential to the success of your plan.

Your team will help you develop goals, identify problems, create solutions and establish links with agency and community resources. You and your family are responsible to pick the most appropriate people to be on your transition planning team. Remember you can include friends, classmates and extended family.

Who is part of my planning team?

Your planning team should consist of a minimum of two members and it is suggested that there be no more than eight members. Any more than eight members can make the group overwhelming for some youth and their families.

Some key participants in planning for your future may include:

- You
- Your family
- School personnel
- Social workers
- Service agencies for adults
- Current service providers
- Community members
- Your friends

You can answer the questions below to help you decide who the best members for your planning team are and what roles they can play (Wehman, 2001):

- Who knows me the best?
- Who do I trust and feel comfortable around?
- Who do I go to for advice and support?
- Who would I like to help me with my transition from school to adulthood?
- How can these people best help me?

What do my team members do?

Assigning roles and responsibilities to your team members is an important part of making your team successful.

You play a key role on the team and you are responsible for sharing your interests and goals with the team, asking questions of them and working towards your goals.

School personnel and other community members (example: social workers, therapists) can assist you in planning for your transition. They can give you feedback on your school and work performance. They can also tell you about possible training opportunities and other resources that may interest you. Contact your local school or school district to find out who can best help you with your Transition Plan.

You and your team will want to choose one person who will act as your transition coordinator. This role can be filled by a variety of individuals, including you or your parent or guardian. The transition coordinator will organize meetings, manage the paper work (example: collect assessment reports, record your Transition Plan) and monitor the progress of your Transition Plan.

If you are preparing a Transition Plan using the IEP process at school, a school-based employee usually takes on the role of transition coordinator. Remember, you and your family are still encouraged to actively participate throughout the planning process.

You may also choose to develop a Transition Plan outside of school. In this case you, a member of your family or another member of your transition team can act as the transition coordinator.

EXERCISE

In the back of this booklet there is a Transition Planning Workbook. Go to Worksheet 1, Building Your Transition Team, and use the questions on page 7 to list the members of your transition team, including your transition coordinator (see pages 20-21).

2 STEP 2: Gather Information

Gathering information about you — your goals, your strengths and your needs — makes sure your plan creates the future you want. This step helps people ‘get to know’ you and understand your dreams.

Transition Planning Tools

A variety of tools can help you gather information about your preferences, goals, hopes, skills, community connections, communication style, and your health and medical needs. This information can be shared with your transition team to help them understand you. In turn, team members will share any information from completed assessments with you and your family to help you prepare your Transition Plan.

WHO AM I?

You and your family may choose to use the planning tools MAPS (Making Action Plans) and/or Planning Alternative Tomorrows with Hope (PATH) to identify your preferences, experiences, skills, support needs, and goals.

MAPS is a planning process that begins with telling your story – your personal history. It is about listening to your dreams, acknowledging your issues, and developing a profile of your gifts and talents.

PATH is a planning tool that first helps you envision your future and then work backwards to the beginning steps that must be taken in order to make your dream come true. To identify possible MAPS and PATH facilitators in your community, contact the Family Support Institute and/or the British Columbia Association for Community Living at (604) 875-1119.

Both MAPS and PATH can be accessed online at www.inclusion.com. When you get to this website, click on ‘inclusion press’. You will find MAPS and PATH in the left hand table of contents for that page.

These tools can help you better understand yourself, define your life goals and make choices and decisions. They will also provide the transition planning team with a stronger sense of what you want to achieve in your life.

Create Your Profile

Your Profile describes who you are. It includes your interests, abilities, likes, dislikes, achievements and needs.

We encourage you to speak with your parent(s) or guardian(s) when you are creating your profile. You know yourself best, but your parents and other family members may have some insight about your strengths and areas where you could grow further.

You can ask yourself and people who know you questions like:

- What are my strengths and interests?
- What are my likes and dislikes?
- What are my accomplishments?
- How do I communicate with people?
- What services and/or supports do I currently use?
- What services and/or supports do I need?

EXERCISE

To build a self-profile that describes who you are, go to Worksheet 2, Your Profile (see pages 22-24). You can develop a self-profile on your own, although it is recommended that you complete the table with a family member as they often have valuable insights.

Create Your Family Profile

A family profile describes both what a family needs and what they have to contribute during the time their son or daughter makes the transition to adulthood.

It may be helpful for your family to consider what services and supports they will need during this time and what they can do to help you successfully create and complete your Transition Plan.

Your parent(s) or guardian(s) can ask themselves these questions:

- What can I do to help my son or daughter prepare for adult life?
- What support can I offer that will help my son or daughter make this transition?
- What services and supports does our son or daughter currently need and use?
- What services and supports do we need to assist us as a family during our son or daughter's transition to adult life (example: home renovations, respite)?

EXERCISE

To create a family profile go to Worksheet 3, Your Family Profile. On this worksheet your family can record their own thoughts about what services and supports they may need to help you transition to adulthood (see page 25).

Identify Your Goals

Once you and your family have created profiles, you can start to discuss your hopes and dreams for the future with them.

Here are a few questions to guide your discussion:

- What will my health and medical needs be? How will I live a healthy lifestyle?
- What about daily living? Will I need help to care for myself? Will I need help with shopping and/or meal preparation?
- Where will I be living? Will I be living at home, in a supported living arrangement, in a group home, or in my own apartment?
- What about money? What will be my source of income? Will I require assistance with banking? If so, who will help me?
- What will my social life look like?
- What will my transportation needs look like? Do I need to use adapted transit?
- What will I do after school is finished? Will I get a job? Will I go to a day program?
- Will I go on to further my education? Will I go to a university or college? Will I take a training course?
- What will I do for recreation? Will I join a sports team? Will I take an art class?
- What will I do during my spare time? Will I volunteer? What about spiritual and cultural activities?
- What will my legal needs be? Who will help me stand up for my rights?

How do I set goals?

A goal is something specific that you want to accomplish within a certain period of time. Talking about your goals with your family may help you better understand what is important to you in your transition to adult life. Your family may also suggest goals they think you could reach and that you may want to consider.

Writing your goals down will help you be clear and specific. It is also useful to think of goals that are short term (take six months to one year to complete) and long term (take one to five years to complete).

EXAMPLE OF SHORT AND LONG-TERM GOALS

Short Term: Joe will have a volunteer position beginning in April.

Long Term: Joe will have a part-time job that pays by the end of the year.

EXERCISE

Record your goals using Worksheet 4, Setting Your Goals (see pages 26-28). It may be helpful to work with your parent(s) or guardian(s) as you go through the worksheet, as they may be able to offer suggestions.

3 STEP 3: Develop Your Transition Plan

Developing your Transition Plan involves talking with your team and doing some creative thinking before writing your plan down. Your written Transition Plan will outline the tasks that must be completed to reach your goals. It will also state who is responsible for completing each task and when it should be done.

Your plan can also list the services and supports you use now and those you will need to make your transition to adulthood successful.

Two sample Transition Plans and a Transition Plan template, included later in this guide on pages 35-46, can give you ideas for your plan and show you different possible layouts. You, your family and your transition team may choose to modify one of the plans to fit your unique circumstances.

First, identify what services and supports are available in the following areas:

- health (medical needs and healthy lifestyle choices)
- daily living (self-care, shopping, meal preparation)
- housing/living arrangements
- finances and money management
- friendship and socialization
- transportation
- post-secondary education/training
- employment
- recreation
- community involvement (volunteer, spiritual and cultural organizations)
- legal and advocacy needs

To find out more about possible services and supports, go to the Resource Guide on pages 47-69.

Your team should consider how the available services in each of these areas can support your goals. When thinking about these services and supports, have your team consider the following five questions (Wehman, 2001):

1. What are your goals?
2. What skills or behaviours do you need to learn to reach your goals?
3. What local programs, services and supports are available to support your goals?
4. What responsibilities must you, the school, adult services, cultural and community agencies, and your family assume in order for you to reach your goals?
5. What are the gaps or barriers within current programs and services that must be addressed?

Second, identify the steps that must be taken to achieve your goals. For your Transition Plan to succeed, the team must identify the specific tasks to be done. The team should also assign these tasks to people on your team to make sure they are completed by the agreed upon time.

Third, go over your plan and check that it is consistent with your vision. Look back at your results from the MAPS or PATH tools and compare them to your list of tasks in order to make sure the steps your team has listed support your dreams.

Answering the following questions can also help you and your team check that your plan is heading in the right direction (Evan & Reid, 1999):

- Will the stated goals move you towards your dreams?
- Will reaching these goals assist you in leading a healthy and successful adult life?

If the answer to these questions is no, or if there is uncertainty, your team should discuss and possibly re-consider the identified tasks and look at your goals again.

4 STEP 4: Put Your Transition Plan Into Action

To put your Transition Plan into action you and your team need to decide who will do each task, how they will do them and when they should be done by. Each team member will be assigned certain tasks and will be responsible for carrying them out on time.

One person on your team should be in charge of making sure everyone follows through on their assigned tasks. This could be done by you, the transition coordinator, or by your parent or guardian. If you are using an IEP to plan for your transition to adult life, then a school employee (example: a teacher or principal) often monitors putting your plan into action and makes sure everybody carries out their assigned tasks.

With everyone on your team working together, your Transition Plan will roll into action, moving you closer and closer to your life as an adult.

EXERCISE

To help you and your transition coordinator track the team's progress complete Worksheet 5, Your Progress (see pages 29-30).

ACTION!

NOTE:

Your transition planning team may develop their own format to record your plan and to list and monitor tasks, in order to keep your Transition Plan on track.

5 STEP 5: Update Your Transition Plan

As you and your team work on your plan, it is important to keep track of how everyone is doing and to adjust the plan if anything changes. Your transition coordinator is responsible for scheduling follow-up meetings and updating your plan as needed. To check the progress of your plan, you, or other team members can directly check with the person responsible for a specific task, or you can ask the transition coordinator to set up a meeting to review and update your plan.

6 STEP 6: Hold an Exit Meeting

The transition coordinator will arrange an exit meeting, which is your team's final planning session. This should happen around the time you are nearing the end of high school. At this meeting the Transition Plan is finalized and the tasks that have been completed are checked off. If any of your goals have not been met, then your team will talk about them and about what to do next.

By this time you will be well on your way to making the adult life you have dreamed of a reality.

MOVING TOWARDS SUCCESS

EXERCISE

As you prepare to leave high school, there are a number of actions you can take to make the transition to adult life as smooth as possible. Worksheet 6, Your Checklist, lists these tasks (see pages 31-34).

Your Checklist can help you keep on track with your plan as you get older and make the transition to adult life. As you move towards your life as an adult, certain tasks can be done at different times. Some can be done when you are as young as 14 years of age, others can wait until you are older. Your Checklist (Worksheet 6) lists some of these tasks and suggests at what age you might want to do them. Some of the tasks may not apply to you, but many of them will. This list includes tasks that will help you plan for your transition, participate in your planning sessions, access various programs and services and put your plan into action.

WORKSHEET 1

Building Your Transition Team

Building your transition planning team is the first step in achieving your future dreams. People who can support you in setting your goals and planning for your future may include your parent(s) or guardian(s), other members of your family, teachers, school support staff, social workers and your friends.

On the next page, fill in the names of the people you have chosen beside their role or title. Remember, your planning team should consist of a minimum of two members and it is suggested that there be no more than eight members. Any more than eight members can make the group more difficult to manage than a smaller group of key people.

Choose one member of your team to be your transition coordinator. This role can be filled by either you, your parent or guardian, or another family member. If you are using the IEP to develop your Transition Plan, a school employee often takes on the role of transition coordinator.

WORKSHEET 2

Your Profile

Your Profile describes who you are, including your interests, abilities, likes, dislikes, achievements and needs. You can use this worksheet to make notes about yourself. Table 1 asks you to describe your personal characteristics and Table 2 asks you to list the services and supports you need now and in the future.

TABLE 1 – CHARACTERISTICS AND QUALITIES

List as many points as you can think of in the boxes on the right. You can develop your profile on your own, but it is helpful to also ask a family member these questions to find out how they see you.

QUESTIONS	MY CHARACTERISTICS AND QUALITIES
What are my strengths?
What are my interests?
What are my likes?

QUESTIONS	MY CHARACTERISTICS AND QUALITIES
What are my dislikes?
How do I communicate with people? (Example: quiet, talkative, use a communication device?)
What are my accomplishments?
Do I have any special considerations? (Include anything not covered by the above topics.)
What are some words that describe myself? (Example: outgoing, positive, picky, good reader, shy, funny, patient, etc.)

TABLE 2 – SERVICES AND SUPPORTS

On this table, list the supports you use now and those that you will need in the future.

WORKSHEET 4

Setting Your Goals

To help you set your goals, 11 goal categories are listed in the following table. Beside the categories that are important to you, write down your short-term goals (six months to one year) and your long-term goals (one to five years). It may be helpful to work with your parent(s) or guardian(s) in setting your goals as they may have suggestions and insights.

GOAL CATEGORY	MY SHORT-TERM GOALS	MY LONG-TERM GOALS
HEALTH (Example: I will take my medication at the right time, without anyone reminding me to do so.)

WORKSHEET 5

Your Progress

You can use this worksheet to track the progress of your Transition Plan by identifying specific tasks that need to be done in order to reach each of your goals.

First, write down your goals in the space provided at the tops of the following three tables. Then list the tasks required to reach each goal in the Tasks column. Your team can assign these tasks to specific team members and set the date when each task should be finished. Write down the responsible team member for each task and the date it is to be completed by. Then mark whether each task is not started, in progress or complete in the status column.

Goal #1: _____

TASKS	RESPONSIBLE TEAM MEMBER	DATE TO BE COMPLETED	STATUS (NOT STARTED, IN PROGRESS OR COMPLETE)

SAMPLE TRANSITION PLANS

The following pages provide two sample Transition Plans and a Transition Plan template. They may be used as a guide to create your plan and can be modified to meet your personal needs.

SAMPLE TRANSITION PLAN 1

ALEX

Date: December 17, 2004
Name: Alex
Birth Date: June 5, 1987
School: Haliburton High

Profile

Alex is a 17-year-old student with a diagnosis of autism spectrum disorder (ASD) and a mild intellectual disability. He is the oldest of three children and lives with his single mother. Alex takes medication for anxiety.

Alex will have a School Leaving Certificate when he completes his last year of school (age 19). He is in a School to Work program for students between the ages of 16 to 19.

Alex receives Autism Funding through the Ministry of Children and Family Development. He currently uses this funding to support his participation in social recreation programs in the community. This funding is not available after his 19th birthday.

Strengths

Alex's strengths include computer skills and sorting materials. He has a keen eye for detail and is gentle with animals.

Team Members

Alex	student
Judy	mother
Charles	transition coordinator and special education teacher, School to Work program
George	School to Work assistant
Michael	support worker for after school program (family is using Autism Funding for this)
Mary	Community Living Services (CLS) social worker

Alex's Vision

Alex and his family would like a supported employment position for Alex in his neighbourhood. His family sees him living at home in the immediate future and then possibly living with another young adult with special needs in a supported placement.

PART 1: ALEX'S EMPLOYMENT PLAN

Employment Goal

Short term: Alex will participate in a variety of supported work placements over the next two years.

Long term: Alex will work full-time with support.

NOTE: At the time of printing this guide, the transfer of authority for delivering Community Living Services to a new organization, Community Living British Columbia (CLBC), was in progress. Consequently, the title and role of the CLS social worker may change. Please see the Ministry of Children and Family Development website (www.gov.bc.ca/mcf) for updates on the transition of services to CLBC.

Skills and Abilities

Currently, Alex's interests lie in using computer programs, counting money, using vending machines, organizing basic materials (sorting, distributing) and grooming and walking small dogs. He participates in a number of Life Skills Programs at school (basic literacy and numeracy and recreation and leisure programs). This term Alex has also worked at the SPCA and at his local grocery store stocking shelves.

Tasks To Be Completed To Achieve Alex's Employment Goal

1. Alex will continue in the School to Work program for his remaining two years of high school.
Until June 2007.
2. Alex will explore other work experiences based on his interests and strengths.
By January 2005.
3. Alex will identify a preferred job site for his entry into supported employment.
By January 2007.
4. The CLS social worker will assist Alex and his mother where needed to identify adult services and programs available through the Ministry of Human Resources, including financial assistance, transportation, employment planning and support.
By December 2006.

Person(s) Responsible For Implementation

Transition coordinator and special education teacher from the School to Work program.

PART 2: ALEX'S INDEPENDENT LIVING PLAN

Independent Living Goal

Short Term: Alex will continue to live at home with his mother until the transition to supported employment is complete and successful.

Long Term: Alex will live with a roommate in a community-housing co-op with supports.

Skills and Abilities

Alex requires assistance with some daily living activities and he needs reminders to take his medications.

Tasks To Be Completed To Achieve Alex's Independent Living Goal

1. Alex and his mother will use some of the Autism Funding to hire a self-care worker/professional (example: occupational therapist) to assist Alex in learning self-care, medication management and household safety skills.
By February 2006.
2. The CLS social worker, Alex and his mother will meet to explore options and possible adult services and programs.
By January 2005.
3. The CLS social worker, Alex and his mother will discuss possible adult programs and services available through the local health authority, including In-home and Community-based Services.
By March 2007, three months before Alex's 19th birthday.

4. Alex and his mother will apply for an apartment in a co-op housing unit.
By December 2007.

Person(s) Responsible For Implementation

Transition coordinator and the CLS social worker.

Note: Alex's Transition Plan could also include goals for employment training, financial needs, transportation, social relationships, etc.

SAMPLE TRANSITION PLAN 2

Date: January 2005
Name: Sandeep
Grade: 11
Age: 16

Profile

Sandeep is a 16-year-old high school student with a diagnosis of cerebral palsy. A cognitive assessment in grade nine, part of the Ministry of Education's requirements for adjudication, revealed Sandeep has average intellectual ability and a learning disability. She requires adaptations for all subjects and uses a voice output device and a laptop computer with Co:Writer. She also uses a power chair for mobility.

Strengths

Sandeep's strengths include being a fast learner and a strong communicator.

Team Members

Sandeep	student
Ranjit	mother
Paul	transition coordinator – special education teacher

SANDEEP

Sandeep's Vision

Sandeep is interested in journalism and writing for periodicals and her favourite magazines. She wants to take a journalism program at a university, but she is concerned that her marks are not good enough for admission. Consequently, she will apply for entry to the community college and take first year English and writing courses before transitioning to university.

Current School Program

Sandeep is working towards a Dogwood Diploma (British Columbia Certificate of Graduation), however she is taking a reduced course load due to fatigue. She will remain in school for a year following her 18th birthday to complete her course credits.

SANDEEP'S POST-SECONDARY PLAN

Post-Secondary Goals

Short term: Sandeep will successfully complete high school.

Long term: Sandeep will attend a Community College and successfully complete first year English and writing courses.

Tasks To Achieving Sandeep's Post-Secondary Goals

1. Sandeep will obtain journalism and writing experience through volunteering for the school newspaper during her last two years of high school.
2. The Transition Coordinator (Paul) will contact Special Education Technology BC regarding the transition to adult services for computer and communication equipment support.
By September 2007.
3. Sandeep and her parents will contact the Ministry of Human Resources regarding programs and services for persons with disabilities (example: transportation, employment planning).
By September 2007.
4. Sandeep will apply for admission to college.
By March 2008.

Note: Sandeep may apply for university entrance after she has completed courses at a community college. Her plan could also include goals around housing and independent living.
